A man and a woman kiss and hug on a street. A man and a woman embraced. ► A man is shirtless when washing his face and we see his upper chest and back. A woman wears a low cut top and dresses that reveal cleavage in some scenes. A woman wears a low-cut tank top that shows cleavage and bare shoulders. The review continues below... Violence/Gore 6 - A man is stabbed in the back and falls on the dead (we hear a shortage); The attacker then pounds the man with what looks like a chimney poker off-screen. A man is chased through narrow European streets, finds an entrance to a tower, men follow him up and the man seems to turn around to turn himself in, but falls back and an opening out (we see him fall, bounce off two roofs and land the ground with a thud; no blood is shown). A man is stabbed in the side, he fights the man who stabbed him and stabbed the other man (we hear crisps and see bloody wounds); A third man stabbed towards him and then stabbed him. A man hits a woman and holds her underwater (almost drowning her) until she's shot multiple times. ► An explosive is detonated and the shockwave blows around people and water; We see a dead woman floating in the water and a man is also floating dead. A man imagines another man walking towards him and a big snake wraps around his shoulders and bites him on the neck (we hear a crunch). A woman shoots a man twice in the torso (we see the bloody hole behind his shirt and he falls to the stable floor. A woman with a gun shoots at a man and a woman as they get into a taxi and speed away (no one is injured). A man kicks open a bathroom door and he raises it in the face with a fire extinguisher and a woman sprays him in the face with something that may be hairspray (he falls to the floor and we see his bloodied eyes later). A man climbs onto a brick wall, another man pulls on his leg and the man hits his head the wall as he falls to the floor (we see some blood on his head and face later). A man with a gun talks to another man and asks for information. A man dragged off a street IS and is kept in the car by other men while the woman he was with is held at gunpoint. ► Officers move through a crowded area looking for a pathogen and explosives; When when People are found to fight over it with punches. We see a dead man on a sidewalk after falling and he has blood on his face and his limbs twisted. A man in a hospital bed is shown with IVs and a bloody bandage on his head; The man twitch and thrash as we see examples of distortion of his dreams or flashbacks that dante humans described in seven levels of hell (we see people with their heads completely twisted backs, people wearing plague masks and their faces are covered with boils and scratches People with missing limbs, people with film-covered eyes, rivers of blood flowing through city streets, people with brands on their flesh, and pairs of tattooed legs sticking out of the ground with a circle of flame around them (we see scenes doing many times throughout the film). A man imagines battle scenes where men with swords fight in an area and we hear that clanking and people fall (no blood is seen), blades and axes are wielded, and a horse flips on its back (we see no injury to the horse). Blood packets are shown pulled from a man's chest and dropped to a floor. Blood-red water flows around platforms where an orchestra performs. Many people rush out of an area where authorities are searching for a pathogen and an explosive. ► A man in a hospital bed tries to get up and run and he falls to the floor (we see blood moving in an IV tube in his hand as a woman helps him). We see a scalpel cutting a man's skull in close-up. A man has a bloody stitched wound on his head and when he peels a bandage off it, we hear squishing and he grimaces. A bag of blood-soaked clothes is shown in a hospital room. A woman pulls an IV from a man's hand and we hear a rip and see a trickle of blood on his hand. A man is shown rash on his back. A man carries a safe transport tube that is a bio-exposure symbol on it and we see a cylinder made of human bone inside it with etching that depicts a three-head demon (described as a symbol from the black plague). A woman falls a path and lands a stage below (no injuries are seen). Message - Huge worldwide conspiracies are real. Keep in mind that it is impossible to hide all the details and reveal some important plot elements as long as we do our best to avoid spoilers. We've gone through many editorial changes since we started covering movies in 1992 and old reviews aren't as complete and accurate as recent ones; We plan to revisit and correct old reviews in the form of resources and time permits. Our ratings and reviews are based on dramatically released versions of movies; Videos often have unrated, special, director-cut or extended versions, released (usually accurately labeled but sometimes mislabeled) with additional content that we didn't review. Image: 'The Witch' - Lionsgate while not as ubiquitous as Netflix (or delightful affordable as our last public domain list), Amazon Prime Amazon Prime offers a solid selection of streaming content for customers. Finding exactly what you're looking for, though, can sometimes be a bit of a hassle. With that in mind, here are 10 great movies you can make for my choice On Amazon Video as you ramp up your Halloween festivities during this final week of the season. They run the gamut from classics to new releases and from imports and indie fare to well-known favorites. As always, I've included estimated runtime, rotten tomatoes' aggregated critics' scores, brief summaries, and links to those extremely useful IMDb's parent guides—perfect for giving you a quick overview of any potentially offensive content. And, of course, there are embedded trailers, original release dates, and links to the movies themselves. So, with the show on! Hell (R-Parent Guide) Original release date: February 7, 1980 Runtime: 107 mins Rotten Tomatoes Rating: 64% Summary: While in practically every way inferior to 1977's Suspiria — which Amazon removed shortly before this writing — this 1980 release, Dario Argentina's second film Three Moms trilogy, is not without its charm. It combines the same gorgeous cinematography and huge color palette of the first film with noticeably better special effects, and this time the bizarre Giallo deaths and scary sound design from the old world moves to a cursed apartment building in NYC. Trailer: Monster (R-Parent Guide) Original release date: November 11, 2016 Runtime: 91 min Rotten Tomatoes Rating: 79% Summary: Kathy isn't exactly the ingredients of Mother's Year. She's an abusive alcoholic, and her 10-year-old daughter Lizzy has had enough of being the caregiver in their relationship. But a late-night auto crash on a deserted road threatened to prevent Lizzy from just returning to his father. Stressful and emotional, this is a portrait of a broken family in a world where real monsters exist right with their somewhat subtle brand of mankind. Trailer: Girl with All The Gifts (R-Parent Guide) Original Release Date: September 9, 2016 (Toronto International Film Festival) Runtime: 111 mins Rotten Tomatoes Rating: 84% Summary: Adapted by M.R. Carey from her novel of the same name. Girl with all the gifts is often promised different kind of zombie story that actually delivers. After a fungal disease set in a military establishment in rural England has turned the bulk of civilians into flesh-eating hungries, it stars Sennia Nanua as Melanie, a young girl who may be humanity's last hope... | Or just another brand of secret danger in the shadows. Trailer: Texas Chainsaw Massacre (Rated-Parent Guide) Original release date: October 1, 1974 Runtime: 84 mins Rotten Tomatoes Rating: 89% Summary: Despite 40+ years of sequels, reboots, and rip-offs, Tobey Hopper's 1974 original both decidedly leatherface experience and a notorious slasher classic all keeps its own. In addition, it strengthened the place of violent hitchhiking, redneck cannibalism and power tool-aided evolution in the horror canon. Trailer: An American Werewolf in London (R-Parent Guide) Original release date: August 21, 1981 Runtime: 97 minutes rotten Rating: 89% Summary: This 1981 John Landis horror comedy is a bit hard to pin down just because it does so. It's goofy and bloody and humorous and heartbreaking. It moves the thin line of self-parody with a nod and a wink, but still manages to tell a good story. Through no fault of his own, David Naughton's David Kessler in turn becomes the film's protagonist and villain, and werewolf tales haven't been the same since. Trailer: Green Room (R-Parent Guide) Original release date: May 17, 2015 (Cannes) Runtime: 95 mins Rotten Tomatoes Rating: 90% Summary: Like the Green Room that's like the amazing second half from dusk to dawn, only a couple of family instead and on-lam gangsters you get a band and Mexican vampires instead you get skinheads. And if, somehow, that is not enough to appeal to you, just allow me to say that none other than Sir Patrick Stewart plays Darcy Banker, the leader of the neo-Nazis. Trailer: Witch (R-Parent Guide) Original release date: January 27, 2015 (Sundance Film Festival) Runtime: 92 minutes Rotten Tomatoes Rating: 91% Summary: Witch was lauded as one of the most frightening films of the year after its wide domestic release on 2016. Personally, I think people were confusing with frighteningly loud, moderately key music, but that's neither here nor there. A bleak period piece focused on the abundant superstitions of an unknown era, the Witch Puritan era is a strange bit of supernatural terror that tends to look spectacularly historically accurate for the extra mile. Trailer: Pan's Labyrinth (R-Parent Guide) Original release date: May 27, 2006 (Cannes) Runtime: 199 mins Rotten Tomatoes Rating: 95% Summary: Guillermo del Toro Dark Fantasy blends real-world horrors with beautifully haunted mythology and folklore and more than the occasionally challenging film. While best remembered for his sinister pale man, taken as a whole, the film is far more than just vivid special effects and accomplished filmmaking — it's not a viewing experience to remember. Trailer: What We Do in the Shadows (R-Parent Guide) Original Release Date: January 19, 2014 (Sundance) Runtime: 86 Minutes Rotten Tomatoes Rating: 96% Summary: Directed by and starring Taika Waititi (Thor: Ragnarok) and Jemaine Clement (of Flight of the Conchords), what we do in the shadows is the supernatural equivalent of this spine-filled with a laugh-out-of-the-loud brilliant abrasive personality that you will come to love despite yourself mockumentary. Trailer: Witches (PG-Parents Guide) Original release date: May 25, 1990 Runtime: 91 mins Rotten Tomatoes Rating: 100% Summary: Starring Anjelica Huston as Grand High Witch, you can't really go wrong with this 1990 feature film based on Roald Dahl's 1983 Children's Fantasy novel. I mean, unless you hate witches.... Or rats... Or Rowan Atkinson. Otherwise, it's a seasonal slam dunk from Warner Bros. and Jim Henson Co. Liked it?
